The Problem

You don't have an English language problem.

You have an interview structure problem.

You understand English.

But in interviews...

- You freeze
- You translate in your head
- Your answers feel too simple
- You don't sound like yourself
- You know the answer... but not how to say it

Here's the truth:

You don't need perfect English to pass an interview.

You need clear, structured answers.

That's what this guide gives you.

High Impact Answers

I. Tell me about yourself

Weak:

“I am a hard-working person. I studied business.”

Strong Structure:

Present → Past → Future

Example:

“I’m currently working as a marketing assistant, where I manage social media campaigns. Before that, I studied business at university. Now, I’m looking for an opportunity to grow in an international company.”

Why it works:

- Clear story
- Sounds confident
- Shows direction

2. What are your strengths?

Weak:

“I am responsible and hardworking.”

Strong Structure:

Skill → Example → Result

Example:

“One of my strengths is communication. In my last role, I worked closely with clients and helped solve issues quickly, which improved customer satisfaction.”

Why it works:

- Real proof
- Not just words

3. Why do you want this job?

Weak:

“I like your company.”

Strong Structure:

Company → Role → You

Example:

“I really like your company’s international focus, and this role matches my experience in customer support. I also enjoy working in fast-paced environments, so this feels like a great fit.”

Why it works:

- Shows interest
- Feels specific

4. What is your biggest weakness?

Weak:

“I don’t have weaknesses.”

Strong Structure:

Weakness → Improvement

Example:

“I used to feel nervous speaking in meetings, but I’ve been actively improving by practicing and speaking more. Now I feel much more confident.”

Why it works:

- Honest
- Shows growth

5. Why should we hire you?

Weak:

“I am a good worker.”

Strong Structure:

Skills → Fit → Confidence

Example:

“I have experience in customer service and strong communication skills. I also adapt quickly to new environments. I believe I can add value to your team from day one.”

Why it works:

- Clear value
- Confident, not arrogant
